

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH BY SIX OCCUPANTS OF AUTO

Machine Turns Turtle on Cherry Valley Road While Going at Rapid Speed and Lands on Interurban Car Tracks

SIX WELL KNOWN YOUNG MEN BADLY INJURED

Ambulance Rushed to Scene of Accident and Injured Taken to the Newark Sanitarium—One Sent to Granville Where Injuries are Dressed—Two Tires of Rear Wheels Blew Out—All Will Recover.

The Injured.

Joseph Copper, 20, clerk employed at Bismark, compound fracture of right leg, left leg cut and bruised. Clyde (Skeeter) Johns, 19, B. & O. brakeman, 221 West Main street, right lower jaw broken, bone penetrating through flesh, face and head cut and bruised, probably injured internally.

William Meeker, 20, Jefferson street, employed at Sigler's garage, face and head cut and bruised; both legs badly cut.

Wallace Davidson, 35, barber at Teuscher's, gash in forehead. Taken to Granville on interurban car.

H. C. Seredino, 30, advertising manager, slightly bruised, taken to Granville.

Clarence Bowman, 22, taxicab driver at Sigler's garage, right hip badly bruised.

The bursting of a rear tire on a lively car from the Sigler auto garage Thursday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock, which caused the car to turn turtle, resulted in the injury of all of the six occupants of the auto, three seriously, and brought a pleasurable trip to a sudden and disastrous termination. The spill occurred on the Cherry Valley road, and almost directly in front of the residence of O. B. Young.

A telephone message from the Young residence sent the Bazler & Bradley auto ambulance to the scene and the injured men, with the exception of Davidson, were brought to the city, three of them being taken directly to the Newark Sanitarium.

According to members of the party the accident resulted from a violent application of the emergency brakes following the bursting of the rear tire. Bowman who was driving states that the car was going about 25 miles an hour when the "blow-out" occurred. He seized the brake lever and applied all the braking power the device possessed.

The sudden checking of the car's speed caused it to skid and the uneven surface of the road offered just enough resistance to the sideways movement of the wheels to cause the car to overturn. It made a complete revolution landing right side up on the tracks of the Newark and Granville car line.

The occupants were hurled through the air as from a catapult. Copper with one leg broken, lay close to the car track. Johns, in a semi-conscious condition was thrown beyond the track and lay half propped up against a small embankment. The others were not so badly hurt and were able to change their positions, though none was able to give much assistance to their companions.

The ambulance arrived on the scene in less than five minutes after receiving the call. Then came the problem of bringing all the injured men back to the city with the least possible delay. It seemed almost impossible to haul all of them in the one conveyance.

Copper, the most seriously hurt, and suffering the most pain, was placed on the emergency stretcher, which swings from the top of the car's interior. Johns, who seemed to be internally injured was placed on the cot below. Meeker, bleeding profusely from wounds about the head and face occupied one of the surgeon's seats alongside the cot. Bowman was assisted to the front seat next to Mr. Bazler, who was driving the ambulance. Mr. Bradley occupied the second seat on the interior and assisted in steadying the stretcher suspended above the cot.

The good roads and long stretch of pavement from the city limits, made it possible to travel at a fairly rapid rate on the return trip without discomfort to the injured passengers. Enroute to the Sanitarium the ambulance men picked up Dr. P. H. Cosner at his office in West Main street. Arriving at the Sanitarium Johns and Meeker were given first aid and made as comfortable as possible in wards on the second floor. Copper was hurried directly to the operating room. Dr. D. M. Smith was called to the Sanitarium and assisted Dr. Cosner in reducing the fracture in Copper's left leg. It was found that both bones were broken and the jagged ends had protruded through the flesh.

At the Sanitarium Friday morning it was announced that the victims of the accident were resting comfortably as could be expected under the circumstances. It is believed that, barring complications, all the injured will recover. It is probable that Johns will be allowed to go to his home Saturday or Sunday.

Copper, who had a bad fracture of the right leg, passed an uncomfortable night, getting little rest. Johns rested well and there were no indications Friday that he had suffered internal injuries. He suffered some hemorrhage from the mouth during the night, due probably to the lacerations caused by the broken bone penetrating the flesh.

Meeker slept little but rested well. He is probably the least seriously injured of any of the victims in the sanitarium. His face is horribly lacerated and bruised and his lips are so badly swollen that he talked with difficulty.

The men left Newark about 3:00 o'clock intending to go to Granville to witness the afternoon's events incident to the commencement ceremonies of Denison University. The car was secured from the Sigler garage and Bowman was at the

Aviator Volplanes to His Death In Blazing Airship At Lima Thursday Night

Lima, June 13.—Andrew Drew, pupil of Orville Wright, volplaned to death here last evening in a blazing biplane.

An aviator of but two years' experience, but already known as a capable airman, Drew was killed last night in a desire to take "just a little joy ride"—his last words to his partner—in a machine which he had not thoroughly tested. His partner in the Lima School of Aviation, J. C. Brabazon, had urged him not to make any lengthy trip, but Drew wished to try out the biplane. He fell 200 feet, his burning machine falling like a torch hurled from the sky and, turning in mid-air, crashed the life out of him. He was dead when Brabazon and several workmen at the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane pulled him from under the wreck.

Brabazon and Drew returned yesterday afternoon from Napoleon, O., where Drew had been giving exhibition flights for two days. Drew had seen to the packing of the biplane and when it arrived here was in a hurry to get it unpacked and tested.

Drew and Brabazon went out to the aviation grounds, about half a mile from the State Hospital, in the afternoon, and Drew and his mechanics set up the machine. It was dusk when they had finished. Drew was anxious to try out the flyer and urged Brabazon, who has made several flights with him, to go along.

"Let's take just one little joy ride," he laughed, "and then I'll go and eat with you."

They were almost the last words he said.

Brabazon demurred on the ground that it was getting too dark to fly and there were no places suitable for a good landing if anything should happen to the machine. But Drew was

FRUSTRATE PLOT TO ASSASSINATE PRESIDENT GOMEZ

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Willemstad, Curaco, June 13.—Details of the recent political disturbance in Venezuela, where a large number of prominent men were imprisoned or took to flight following accusations of conspiracy against the government, reached here today.

It is stated that a plot to assassinate President Juan Vicente Gomez, was frustrated by the imprisonment of Gen'l Delgado Chabaud and a number of his friends. The plot was to have been carried out at the inauguration of the Venezuelan today.

An announcement made by the government says: "The plot was uncovered by General Chabaud, who flatly refused to take part in it. When invited to become a party to the plot he started toward Miraflores palace to inform the president of the danger. On his way he was shot at, but escaped injury. The information he gave to the president led to the imprisonment of the plotters."

In circles in which General Chabaud is well known, it is stated that there was no plot of any kind against Gomez. The president is declared to have imprisoned General Chabaud because of jealousy and fear that he might become a candidate for the presidency next April.

MRS. KELLER REPUDIATES CONFESSION

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Harrisville, Mo., June 13.—Mrs. Ida May Keller, who yesterday confessed in the presence of sheriff, county prosecutor and coroner that she killed her husband, Arthur Keller, and their seven-year-old daughter, Margaret, Tuesday, with an axe, today called Sheriff Prater to her apartments in the county jail and repudiated the confession, saying that the Kansas City detective, who investigated the murders, "scared it out of her."

13 HOODOO HAS NO TERRORS FOR A COLUMBUS COUPLE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Columbus, O., June 13.—The thirteenth hoodoo has no terrors for Miss Donna Gertrude McKillip of 1228 Wesley avenue, and Albert Carl Durdack of 71 East Ninth avenue, who will be married at 3:12 p. m. They will leave on their honeymoon trip at 4:12 p. m.

In addition to the Friday feature which is enough to scare most people into choosing some other day for entering upon any important enterprise or venture, this happens to be the thirtieth day of the month in the thirtieth year of the century.

Further to defy the fates, Miss McKillip and Mr. Durdack had planned to have thirteen guests and no more at the wedding, but realizing that among so many friends whom they would like to invite it would be embarrassing to make the selection of thirteen, they decided finally to invite no one. They will be married by Rev. H. F. Gould, pastor of the First Methodist Protestant church.

BODY RIDDLED WITH BULLETS THEN BURNED

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Anadarko, Okla., June 13.—Bennett Simmons, an 18-year-old negro, was taken from the county jail here early today by a mob composed of nearly 1000 persons, hanged to a tree, the body saturated with oil, riddled with bullets and then burned.

Simmons was charged with the murder of Susie Church, 16 years old. She was returning on horseback from Cofer, Okla., to her home in the country when she was pulled from the horse and assaulted. Two hours later her parents found her dead body in a clump of bushes near the road. Her throat had been cut from ear to ear. Simmons when arrested had a bloody knife in his possession and his clothing was covered with blood. He denied he committed the crime.

PRESIDENT'S NAME BROUGHT BEFORE THE COMMITTEE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Washington, June 13.—President Wilson's name in connection with "White House influence" for the tariff bill, was brought before the senate lobby investigating committee again today by Senator Gallinger, who declared the president had come "perilously near lobbying" in some of the things he had done in connection with the tariff bill. Mr. Gallinger did not make a direct charge that the president had "lobbied" for the tariff bill but the intimations in his testimony were taken by democratic senators to be so broad that they subjected him to a long cross examination on the subject of White House influence.

Senator Gallinger's statements came as a profound surprise. He was about to leave the stand when Senator Reed asked a definite question. "When a man says he would 'hang some one as high as Haman' if that person did not concern things," said Senator Gallinger, "and that an industry which proposed reduction of wages and did so would be investigated, I think that is about the worst kind of influence I can imagine."

"What do you think of a public official that gets up a scare about an 'industrial lobby'?" asked Senator Nelson.

"That he intends to influence public opinion and the opinion of the public men," returned Senator Gallinger.

"Would you regard it as a species of lobby?"

"From my own inability to define the term in my own satisfaction perhaps I would not like to say. It was a species of lobby influence."

"It was an intimation that men are afraid to use their own judgment lest the people suspect them of lobbying?" persisted Senator Nelson.

"It so impressed me," replied Senator Gallinger.

"You think then that members of congress can be intimidated?" asked Chairman Overman.

"I have no disposition to criticize public officials for cheap partisan purposes," returned Gallinger. "I still am forced to the belief that the influence used in behalf of free sugar or free wool or free anything else is as objectionable as anything else."

Senator Reed tried to draw the line between the president acting in behalf of the people who elected him and private interests conducting a campaign for selfish ends.

"I am an old-fashioned person," replied Senator Gallinger. "I still believe in the three co-ordinate branches of the government and I believe in the power of the executive encroaching on the powers of the others and attempting to influence legislation."

"The sugar men were represented," said Senator Reed, "don't you think the president had a right to use his influence?"

"The president has a right to make his statement in messages to congress."

"You do not want to charge that the president of the United States has brought any kind of coercion to bear on any members of congress?"

"I would not undertake to say so. I have no disposition to criticize him unfairly."

Mr. Gallinger added that he did know that many democrats were complaining because more offices were not filled and more nominations not sent to the senate.

"You don't mean to intimate that the president is holding up appointments to compel them to vote for legislation they do not desire?"

"I make no charge."

FIERCE BATTLE BETWEEN MOROS AND AMERICANS

(ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM) Washington, June 13.—"Probably no fiercer battle since American occupation" is the description by Brigadier General Pershing of the battle with the Moros yesterday at Bangsak in his report by cable today to the war department.

The Moros made desperate attempts to rush the American lines, but were finally beaten back and overwhelmed. Their leader Anil and several other noted outlaws were reported killed, but the total loss of the Moros is not known.

One American officer, Taylor A. Nicholas of the Philippine Scouts, was killed; First Lieutenant Edward H. Mackley, Philippine Scouts, was slightly wounded, and three Philippine Scouts of the Fifty first company, all natives, were killed.

David Wortley, age 90, of Sunbury, Pa., is being sued for desertion by his wife, aged 80.

FIFTY-SIXTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT OF NEWARK HIGH SCHOOL

Auditorium of High School Handsomely Decorated for the Occasion Thursday Evening---Class Colors, Black and Orange, Predominated

DIPLOMAS RECEIVED BY EIGHTY-FIVE GRADUATES

Large Audience Present to Hear the Exercises, Eight Class Orators Participating in a Splendid Program—Diplomas Presented by Hon. Edward Kibler, Sr., President of the Board of Education, in An Eloquent Address.

Before the audience of admiring parents, friends and former instructors, filling the high school auditorium to its utmost capacity, the largest class in the history of Newark public schools was formally graduated Thursday night, to take up the activities of life in a new epoch of careers for its members. It was the occasion of the fifty-sixth annual commencement of the schools. The class of 1913 of Newark High is now a matter of history.

Fortunately the weather was favorable for a large gathering, the participants in the program were well prepared for their appearance, and from the rise of the curtain at 8:15, displaying the capped and gowned assembly of students, the entire evening passed off flawlessly.

It is a matter of comment that the total average grades of the class of 1913 has been higher than that of any preceding class to be graduated from the institution.

Occupying four rows of elevated seats were the eighty-five members of the graduating class. In the front row were the speakers of the evening. To the left of the class were seated Hon. Edward Kibler, president of the board of education; William E. Miller, vice president; Rev. G. Bohon Schmitt, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church; Wilson Hawkins, superintendent of public schools and Oren J. Barnes, principal of the High school.

A huge collection of ferns and palms banked in the pit in front of the stage and a large mixed bouquet on the speakers stand comprised the floral decorations. Class colors were unobtrusively displayed, in the form of a yellow rose worn by each graduate over the black gown, carrying out the scheme of black and orange.

A single class pennant was displayed on the stage.

The program was given as published with the slight change that Miss Hazel Fleming, who was to have appeared with young ladies' quartet and in a solo number, was unable to participate in the musical numbers on account of a severe cold. In this one instance a substitution was necessary.

In place of her solo, Mr. Ralph Laughlin gave a most pleasing rendition of "A Perfect Day" (Carrie Jacobs Bond.)

An audience which filled the High school auditorium to capacity assembled to witness the program, which was opened with invocation pronounced by Rev. G. Bohon Schmitt, pastor of St. Paul's English Lutheran church.

Following the singing by the young ladies' quartet, of a special quartet arrangement of Nevins' "The Rosary," the first speaker of the evening, E. Gray Swingle, president of the class, began his oration on "The Conservation of Human Resources."

Mr. Swingle spoke of the many enemies of society, which, often in forms of deadly proportion, have menaced progress of the nation and of society itself from the earliest times, are now being wiped out with the dawn of realization of the value of conservation of natural resources. He spoke in particular of disease, impure foods and drugs, workshop conditions, child labor, etc.

Mary B. McLain, in an oration on "Alice Freeman Palmer" told what that woman accomplished in an educational way, and lauded her successful efforts and remarkable uplift work among girls and young women, giving particular attention to the part taken by Miss Palmer in the advancement of Wellesley college to the position it holds today.

Gail R. Keeckley, in a comprehensive observation on the use and misuse and abuse of the law, under the caption, "The Majesty of the Law," brought out many interesting points in the advance of legislation, and touched in a general way on the why and wherefore of jurisprudence and its historic relationship.

Neva M. Baumgarten gave several new insights on the work of Jacob Riis and his remarkable accomplishments in reform campaigns, from the time he began his career as a New York police reporter until the broad civic activities of this man were launched in formation of the Lexow committee.

Some interesting botanical facts were brought out in the oration by Howard W. Mossman, among which was noted the existence, at Buckeye lake of the only Oriental Lotus flower in the two Americas. The various floral attractions of Licking county were enumerated by the speaker, and the flower was cited as an example of the wonderful "provisions of nature for the perpetuation of life and beauty."

Humor of the occasion was provided by William M. Taafel, whose reading "Mr. Dooley on Woman Suffrage," given in true Irish dialect, was rich in genuine amusement and the philosophical touches for which Finley Peter Dunne, the author, has gained fame. The speaker gave the reading with natural accent and emphasis assumed to be really characteristic of the indescribable Dooley himself.

Paul B. Edwards discussed in an enlightening way the Panama canal subject, following a brief history of the question with references to the international relations involved and the

Six Killed and Many Injured In a Collision of Fast Express Trains

Stamford, Conn., June 13.—Six persons are dead and twenty injured, some seriously, as the result of a rear-end collision on the main line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, opposite the local passenger depot, at 4:46 yesterday afternoon, when the second section of the Springfield express, west-bound, crashed into the first section, which was just leaving the station. It is reported the engineer of the second train ran past his signals.

The Dead.

Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, Winthrop, Mass., wife of a land agent of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Frank Canfield, Springfield, Mass. Everett Hasley Woodruff, Flashing, N. Y.

Dr. Harmon G. Howe, Hartford, Conn. Gregory Hume.

Mrs. Flora Seeley.

The engine of the second section plowed half way through the Pullman car "Skylark," the last car on the first section. In this car there were 31 passengers and practically all of them were injured.

According to an official statement given out by the railroad, the indications are that the engineer of the second section ran by the distance and home signals. The Springfield express was the same train that was in the wreck at Westport, Conn., last October, in which eight persons were killed and scores injured. This wreck was caused when the engineer ran by signals.

The first section of the train, which was made up at Boston, arrived here on time, but halted momentarily to change the powers from steam to electricity. While awaiting orders to proceed, the second section

MESSAGE FROM MAYOR SWARTZ CARRIED TODAY

By Fifty Y. M. C. A. Athletes from Mt. Vernon Over Road Between the Two Cities.

At two-thirty o'clock this afternoon, a security guard at the entrance of the Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A., was handed a sealed envelope containing a letter from Mayor Swartz addressed to Mayor Perrine of Mt. Vernon. Like a flash he was off up Hudson avenue running like a scared deer.

A half mile from the Y. M. C. A. he overtook another athlete clad in similar garments. He passed the message to his successor and he dashed northward. At intervals of a half mile these athletes were posted and each received the letter from the runner. It is expected that the message will be delivered to Mayor Perrine at the Mt. Vernon Y. M. C. A. about 5 or 6 o'clock tonight. The message is as follows:

Newark, Ohio, June 12, 1914.
To the Honorable Mayor, City of Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

Dear Sir: It affords me pleasure and a great deal of satisfaction to pen you a few laudatory lines in favor of the athletic representatives, members of the Y. M. C. A., of your city.

These young men have been the guests of our local Y. M. C. A. preparatory to their entering their relay race. As mayor of Newark, I assure you we were delighted to have young men in our city and am proud to state they conform in every respect to the standard of gentlemanly requirements.

Yours sincerely,
F. M. SWARTZ.

Mayor City of Newark, Ohio.

This is the first cross country road race ever attempted between Newark and Mt. Vernon. The time in which the distance is made will be watched with considerable interest by local athletes.

WATER BASEBALL IS LATEST SPORT

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

New York, June 12.—Water baseball, the latest sport novelty, is being tried out at a Nautarium in an amusement park here with the idea of organizing a local eight club league. The game includes many of the features of regular baseball with unique variations, including diving for bases instead of sliding. It is suggested that if major league players were all good swimmers and adopted this plan the wettest of wet grounds would be no excuse for postponement of a big game.

Pres. Wilson Will Remain at Capital During the Summer

[ASSOCIATED PRESS TELEGRAM]

Washington, June 12.—President Wilson personally will conduct Mrs. Wilson and daughters to the summer White House at Cornish, N. H., it was made known today, provided congress is not in session. The trip will be made early next month and it is expected that congress, when it adjourns over the Fourth of July, will take a recess probably from Wednesday to the following Monday, the national holiday falling on Friday this year. This would give the President ample time to see that his family was settled in their summer home and return in time for the resumption of the session.

To friends the President has let it be known that he made up his mind to remain in the capital during practically the entire heated term.

John Paul Jones, Breaking the Mile Record.

Boston, June 6.—When a man must run a mile to break a record he is under strain. Note the expression on the face of John Paul Jones as he stepped over the line when he broke the mile record at the intercollegiate meet here. He ran the distance in 1 minute, 14 2-5 seconds, which is one second faster than an amateur ever before made the distance.

Jones is the captain of the Cornell track crew. He has said that he will not race again after this season. Some of his friends have predicted since the effort he made in Boston that he will not race again this season.

AVIATOR VOLPLANES

insistent. The machine which he was using was the one in which Calvin Rodgers, summer before last, made the last lap of his coast-to-coast flight. Drew remarked to his partner that if the old girl stood up on that trip she was not going to drop to any test flight.

Drew promised Bradshaw that he could go up only a short distance and that if the machine was not working right would not leave the field. On his promise Bradshaw reluctantly agreed to his flying. Bradshaw watched him as he ascended 150 or 200 feet and circled about the field twice. The machine appeared to be behaving nicely and his partner worked start off in a northwestern direction toward the hospital. He was flying about 30 miles an hour, skimming through the air about 200 feet up.

Suddenly Drew shut off his motor and the men at the aviation grounds and the hospital workers, who had gathered to watch the birdman fly, saw a red tongue of flame dart back and forth against the now darkening sky. It was almost too dark to see that Drew himself was alone. The flash of red at the rear of the machine increased and Drew, evidently hoping to land in a field about half a mile away, made an emergency dip in an effort to save himself. It was his undoing, he dived too abruptly and the plane, hesitating for a moment, suddenly shot downward, careening as it began to fall.

The plumes of the machine had caught by this time. It came down like a great rocket, its pilot tangled in meshes of the snapping wires. There was no chance for Drew to be thrown clear as the engine hit the earth. Almost together, biplane and aviator struck the rocks, which were scattered about the new building.

Bradshaw and the others were nearly a half a mile from the spot where Drew fell. As they ran across the fields to the wreck there was the sound of an explosion and the machine was torn apart. The force of the explosion was upward. The workmen dragged his body from under the debris of the wreck and hurried it in an auto to a local morgue, where Coroner B. J. Curtis viewed it.

Drew evidently had landed on his head. His skull was fractured and it is thought this was the immediate cause of his death. But in addition both arms and both legs were broken. Word was immediately sent to his relatives in St. Louis.

Drew was killed only a few hours after he had completed the arrangements for racing with an auto and a motorcycle here on July 1 in an exhibition which he, Bradshaw and Frank Shaffer, his other partner, were to put on Shaffer is now between here and Chicago arranging for stops and other matters incidental to a flight for Lima to Chicago, which Drew was to have made with a passenger.

rounded a curve at high speed and crashed into the last Pullman car. This car was well filled and that more persons were not killed outright is considered miraculous.

Simultaneously with the crash the wreckage took fire and the city department was called out. The blaze was easily extinguished.

Early arrivals on the scene found Rev. Anthony Berber, a Catholic priest of New York, coolly directing the work of rescue. Although injured himself, he refused to go to a hospital until others, more seriously hurt had been taken care of. He is at the Stamford hospital with slight injuries.

Dr. Howe was one of the most prominent surgeons in Connecticut. He was 62 years old. For years he was president of the Hartford hospital and at the time of his death was chairman of the medical and surgical staff. He was a member of the American Medical association, the Connecticut Medical society, the Hartford Medical society and numerous clubs.

NEWSPAPER MAN CRUSHED IN WRECK REMEMBERS PAPER

New York, June 12.—Gregory T. Hume, of this city who died today in the hospital at Stamford, Conn., and was a passenger in the Pullman car which was telescoped by the electric engine of a train behind. When Hume was carried from the wreck, suffering from a crushed pelvis and compound fracture of the ankle on each foot, as well as internal injuries, he said to those who were carrying him:

"Call up my paper right away and tell them there is a wreck here—a big story. Tell them I am sorry I won't be able to work, because I am mashed up. Call up my mother too."

Having done his duty—the first thing that flashed into his newspaper mind—he collapsed and was unconscious until his death today.

DEAD AVIATOR WAS A FORMER NEWSPAPER MAN

St. Louis, June 12.—Andrew Drew, who was killed last evening at Lima, was one of the most adventurous wealthy young men of St. Louis. Although the son of a bank president, brought up with every opportunity to take up the affairs of his father, who died three years ago, Drew accepted a position on an afternoon newspaper. While a reporter he made a trip in a balloon to get a story. He was fascinated by the experience and qualified for a pilot's license.

Drew went up in a leaky balloon from the Kinloch field, April 9, 1911, and narrowly escaped with his life. He studied aviation at Dayton, and Ambulance Men Busy.

Thursday was a strenuous day for the driver of the Bazler & Bradley ambulance as well as the attendants at the Sanitarium. Seven emergency cases were handled during the 18 hours from Wednesday midnight until Thursday evening. The first victim was Elmer Shaffer who was thrown down stairs in East Newark. He was received at the Sanitarium from the Bazler ambulance at 2:30 Thursday morning. Rollin J. Carter, cab driver, whose leg was crushed, was the next patient. He was received from the same ambulance crew about 9 o'clock. At 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon, James McGee, B. & O. man was brought in with two fractured ribs. Then came the automobile accident in which six were hurt, three of whom were taken to the Sanitarium.

In speaking of the run to the scene of the last accident, Mr. Bradley stated that they were placing the injured in the ambulance five minutes after the call was received, though much of the trip was made as carefully as possible through the city streets.

"After I left Sixteenth street, I looked at the speedometer and it was registering 15 miles an hour. After that I was afraid to look. Literally the car was hitting only the high places."

With regard for the comfort of the injured men, the return was made at a speed of about 15 miles an hour. Most of the way from the city limits to the Sanitarium, the ambulance took to the street car rails, furnishing a smooth surface for the wheels.

"There is not much to tell," said Clarence Bowman, driver of the wrecked car as he twisted about in his bed when visited by an Advocate reporter Friday morning.

"We were going at a pretty good clip when the rear tire burst. The

UPRISING IN REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Peking.—President Yuan Shih Kai has been driven almost into a corner by a concatenation of circumstances which have given to his opponents what they declare to be justification for all their suspicions that he would at some period or other endeavor to dominate in the councils of the nation if not to become dictator or emperor.

The murder of Sung Chiao Jen at Shanghai and the signing of the quintuple loan without the authorization of parliament have been seized upon to revile the president and declare him unfit to occupy the high post which many believe he alone can properly fill.

To such a white heat has public opinion got that another revolution is freely talked of, and every effort possible has been made to prevent the quintuple loan from being consummated. In Shanghai the severest censure is being passed upon the president and the cabinet, and so reckless is the language being used that the municipal authorities in that port recently were compelled to take notice of it and issue an order threatening to arrest and try any editor, publisher, reporter or printer guilty of unrestrained expression of opinion.

Yuan Shih Kai regarded the outbreak with apparent indifference for some time, but of late he has been moving troops to strategic points and in other ways has indicated that he is alive to the probabilities if he does not show his hand and indicate his intentions.

The opposition is coming almost solely from the Kuo Mintang, and, while it seems that they have considerable cause for complaint that republican principles are not being carried out as they should be, they have in a sense spoiled their case by the unrestrained ebullitions of their publicists in Shanghai.

Proceeding upon constitutional lines, the Kuo Mintang may have compelled a hearing of their claims, but the attitude adopted by the newspaper they publish in English in Shanghai has alienated most foreign sympathy and has rendered it difficult for the leaders to carry on the campaign they inaugurated. This newspaper has proved fatal to the party.

Other newspapers published in China have followed suit, and the result has been the stirring of the people to such an extent that a second revolution is believed to be on the tapis. At all events the president is preparing for one, and, in addition to moving troops, he has issued mandates which are intended to indicate what his intentions are. On May 2 he issued two.

In the first he describes how the country has just passed through revolution, how "many" were followers of the righteous cause, took advantage of the name of revolution "to extort and injure law abiding people" and how "the constitutional spirit of the country has not yet soundly recovered."

He recalls how he has pardoned offenders who have been guilty of conspiracy, hoping they would repent of their guilty conduct, and describes the situation as "dangerous to the highest degree, the financial strength of the nation being dried up and the people having practically very little to make their lives worth living."

In the second mandate morality is described as the foundation of republican government and law the limit, and from that the president goes on to refer to the murder of Sung Chiao Jen and the signing of the loan. The former he states offers no excuse to suspect the premier, and, as for the latter, it was competent for the governor to sign the loan agreement the late national council having passed it.

Flag Day Tomorrow

It was 136 years ago tomorrow, June 14, 1777, that the first flag of stars and stripes was completed and approved by America's patriots who were fighting the grand battle for liberty and independence. There is a spirit abroad in the land today to pay a proper tribute to Old Glory tomorrow.

Governor Cox's paper, the Dayton News, publishes the following editorial upon the proper observance of Flag Day:

"Any occasion which calls for the display of the flag should be observed. There is delight in seeing a profusion of the red, white and blue. There is no appeal to sentiment through the medium of the eye which is as quick or as thrilling as that of the country's flag.

"Too often we are reminded of war, when the flags come out. We have used the flag for military anniversaries, and there have not been enough celebrations of other character to be distinguished by a display of the colors. Memorial Day reminds us of war. The Fourth of July celebrates an event which was followed by war, and we inevitably connect the observance of the day with the Revolution.

"Let Flag Day stand for pure patriotism. The colors should come out as a testimonial of our love for our country, and of our devotion to her. It should stand for civic patriotism, for love of country, state and city. It should be a love so intense that the most heedless citizen is inspired to take new resolve that he will glorify his government by making it better.

"It used to be the aim of patriotic speakers to make the flag an inspiration to fight for the country. 'My country, right or wrong,' used to be a slogan of patriotism. We don't lay quite so much stress on that slogan nowadays, for it's a bad thing for the country's leaders to think they can command fighters for wrongful policies. The flag should inspire us to a patriotic fervor to help make the country right, always right. The flag is only to be respected so long as it stands for a nation that exalts righteousness and justice.

"And the flag stands for those very qualities. It was devised in a time when the young American people were fighting for liberty. It has stood for broad policies of righteousness for long years of national life. There have been periods of darkness, when it appeared that the forces of evil and of injustice were gaining the upper hand, but there has never been a time when the old flag stood for a cleaner public spirit, or for a better future, than it does today.

"Let us approach the observance of Flag Day with a new thought of what the flag stands for, and fling the colors to the breeze with a new determination to do our part toward making it represent a government of which we shall be increasingly proud."

An interesting experiment in responsibility, and this experimenting spirit among boys is reported from New York, where 200 boys in one public school on the East Side have been made deputies of the street cleaning department, and equipped with shields and certificates of appointment, upon their solemnly engaging to help the street cleaners to keep the East Side neat. The badge and the connection with a branch of the city government please the boys and impose upon them a sense of

WOULD AVOID ALL LABOR DISPUTES

Industrial Peace Chief Aim of Secretary Wilson.

TO UPLIFT CONDITIONS.

"Capital and Labor Are Partners, and Each Should Have Voice in Determining the Terms," He Says—Doesn't Favor Strikes.

Washington.—William Bauchop Wilson, secretary of labor, is a strong, sturdy man, with blond hair, fair face, fighting gray blue eyes and a Scotch accent. He was born at Blantyre, Scotland, April 2, 1862, and came to this country nine years later. Settling with his parents in Tioga county, at Arnot, Pa., he became a mine worker at the age of ten. The following year, just after he had passed his eleventh year, he was made a half member of the Milne Workers' union. He obtained his early education from a small village school and in rough and tumble debates in union meetings. He was elected to the Sixtieth, Sixty-first and Sixty-second congresses. March 4 he was appointed secretary of the new department of labor.

This, briefly, is the story of the man who is the first to hold a particular cabinet office.

"What this department hopes to do primarily," said Secretary Wilson, "is to try to bring about such conditions that 'uplift' work in industrial centers will not be needed. We are proceeding on the assumption that capital and labor are partners, capital furnishing the material ready for use and labor the vitalizing force. Capital and labor should each have a voice in determining the terms of the partnership."

Secretary Wilson thinks that a strike is like a war between nations—to be resorted to when all other efforts have failed.

"I would not favor a strike if anything else was left for me to do," he said. "In strikes, as in war, there are destruction and ruin, but there are times when they cannot be avoided.

"I look upon the department of labor as a means of helping to bring nearer year by year the goal of social justice. Every man is entitled to the full social equivalent of what he produces. The problem is to arrive at that condition Capital and labor are partners.

"Capital without labor is ineffective; labor without capital is idle. Capital is animate; labor gives it life. The one can produce nothing without the employment of the other. To be effective capital and labor must serve each other. Their interests, diverge when they come to divide what they have produced. These two elements should sit down together and work out a plan by which the division of profits will be fair, with due regard for the rights of each."

It has been feared by advocates of the "open shop" that Secretary Wilson would lean a little closer to organized labor than he should do in this country of all sorts of labor. But he denies that he is to be a union labor officer of the government. He believes that laboring people should organize and that a union labor man, as a rule, is more than the nonunion worker.

"With the growing industries," said Mr. Wilson, "there is no longer that personal relation between employer and employed that formerly existed. The employer is compelled to deal with larger numbers. The employee as an individual cannot make as satisfactory a contract with the employer as he can when he unites with his fellow workers and fellow men. That is what makes a labor movement necessary."

"The department of labor was instituted to obtain by the rule of reason—that is, by striking a basis where the employer can compete with rivals and also pay satisfactory wages—a fair and amicable adjustment of all trade disputes. This would be a rule of reason based upon facts.

"The purposes for which the department of labor was established will have been accomplished if we can bring capital and labor together upon a just basis."

RELICS IN OLD INDIAN GRAVE.

Oregon Workmen Uncover Interesting Mementoes of Hudson Bay Company. Oregon City, Ore.—While digging a drain ditch on the west bank of the Willamette river about a mile south of Oregon City workmen uncovered an old Indian grave.

In the grave, which from its position is known to be at least 100 years old, were found an old bear trap and a flint lock rifle, both of which bore the mark of the Hudson Bay Company. The bear trap is in a good state of preservation, but the rifle has been rusted into three pieces. Besides the rifle and trap there also were found fifty feet of brass and copper bands and a stone tomahawk.

Uncle Walt's Philosophy

The Best Seller
The latest book by Mr. Gush has made a killing grand, and to the bookstores people rush, with money in each hand. "We want this best of Gush's works," they cry "and here's the mon!" And so the sad, soul weary clerks dispense it by the ton. The village library's in a stew, for all the dimes are there; they want that book—none else will do—and they are pulling hair! In street cars, in the busy mart, and in the social crush, they talk, until they break your heart, about that book by Gush. And all the tiresome low brow dubs discuss it in the street; and women, at their culture clubs, read extracts and repeat. You hear of it from every bore, and in the evening's hush you sadly sit before your door and curse the name of Gush. And then the talk all dies away, as sudden as it rose; a new best seller is in sway, and Gush turns up his toes. If in the book store you should look, next morning, for Gush's work, "We never heard of such a book," will say the weary clerk. Today a book may be a scream that holds the public mind, it passes like a winter dreamland leaves no trace behind.

Daddy's Bedtime

There Was a Stormy Time In Flyland.

JACK and Evelyn had been telling daddy of the wicked doings of the fly family. There had been a good deal of talk in school about flies toward the end of the term, and many boys and girls had started out to hunt and swat them.

"Ah, indeed," daddy observed, "that may account for some of the strange stories my friend Buzzer has been telling me."

"It seems that there have been very strange happenings in Flyland. Buzzer was quite worked up about it."

"As he came and sat down on my shoulder he was out of breath and wheezed as he began to talk."

"I can't think what that big black thing was that passed me," he said. "Really it gets more dangerous every day for a poor fly to be about. I was slowly flying through the kitchen when a black mountain rose in front of me, and part of the mountain reached out and tried to hit me. Why can't mountains keep still instead of rushing about like that, getting into a poor fly's way and scaring him most to death?"

Jack and Evelyn laughed. "That was Dinah in the kitchen. She always chases flies," they explained. "She says she can't abide them in her kitchen."

"There was a terrible earthquake out on the porch," said the fly. "I sat down for just a minute on something that tasted, oh, so sweet!" and daddy glanced rigidly at Evelyn as he spoke.

"Yes, yes; Evelyn had a piece of cake on the porch!" Jack laughed delightedly. "Don't you remember you said, 'Seat, you horrid fly?'" Evelyn smiled and nodded.

Daddy went on: "Buzzer said he wanted to just get a taste of the sweet stuff when the earthquake began."

"Whenever I go into the house something is sure to happen," he complained. "I have almost a notion to do like Uncle Bluebottle—go off by myself."

"Yes; he has a beautiful home over there in the marsh. The house he used to live in got to be such a dangerous place he left it. He would sit down for a minute, and a mountain would chase him or a big black cloud would come swishing down, trying to hit him. There were so many storms and cyclones and tornadoes and earthquakes that he said he would go off where there were no moving mountains and live in peace and safety. He says there's lots to eat over there in the woods, and if this keeps up much longer, why, I'm just going out camping myself until times get to be a little quieter for a poor fly."

"Flies can see only a very little of a big creature like a human being at a time. So they never quite know what we are. Don't you think, then, that to them we must look very like moving mountains?"

Lemonade a Germicide.

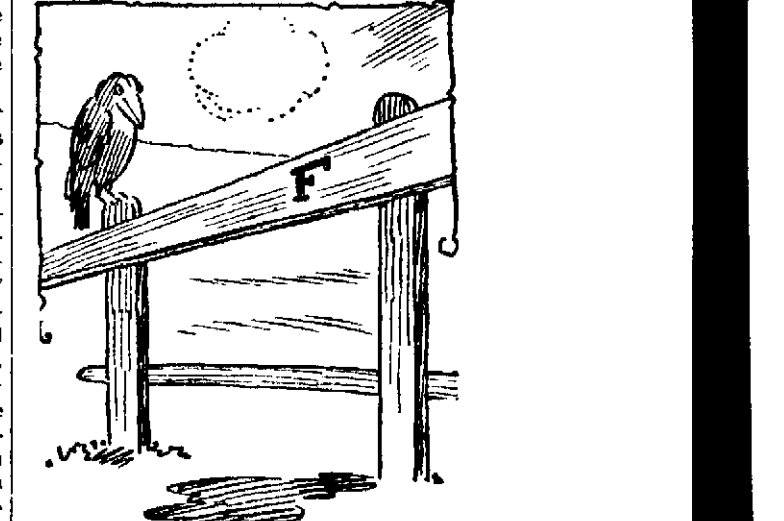

Lemonade made with soda water, seltzer or carbonic water is one of the most perfect germicides that can be taken into the body, according to the London Lancet.

"It has long been known that water charged with carbonic acid gas loses after awhile what bacteriological activities it possessed," says that authoritative medical paper. "This observation has been confirmed, the evidence showing that the germicidal effects are greater as the pressure of gas is increased. It would seem to follow that deep natural waters charged with carbonic acid gas must be sterile, at all events before they reach the surface, and numerous examinations have shown that natural aerated waters exhibit a freedom from active germs. In the case of lemonade, however, the is present, besides carbonic acid gas, the citric acid of the lemon, and citric acid, even in weak solutions, is a germ destroyer."

The Main Point.

diplomatic solutions required by reason of the canal treaties with other countries, particularly referring to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with England pertaining to canal tolls. Attention was given to other treaties to which the United States has been a party since the inception of the canal project.

Ralph W. Laughlin, speaking on "The Progress of International Peace," noted the advance from the age of savagery and war to the age of civilization and peace. He gave much credit to such institutions as "The Hague peace conference," but declared the greatest force for international peace to be strides in brotherly feeling and realization of the costliness of war in life and funds.

The music of the evening was delightful. The opening quartet, "The Rosary" (Nevin) was sung by Miss Olive Howard, Grace Marvin, Junia Sells and Helen Rossel. Mr. Ralph Laughlin sang "A Perfect Day" (Carried Jacobs Solo) in substitution for Miss Fleming's solo.

The piano solo by Miss Sells, "The Larks" (Leshchivsky) proved to be much appreciated as truly excellent. Miss Sells executed the number tastefully and with delicate effect.

From the past of the musical program was the beautiful and impressive class song, by the entire class of eighty-five, standing, and directed by Prof. C. W. Klopp, instructor in music in the public schools.

Invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. G. Bohan Schmitt.

Hon. Edward Kibler, president of the board of education, in making the presentation of diplomas, paid tribute to the class and to the instructors of the city schools, declaring the faith of the board of education in the ability of Superintendent Hawkins and High School Principal Barnes was re-estimated when the board recently re-elected those men for a period of three years. Superintendent Wilson Hawkins delivered the class address as follows: Members of the Class of Nineteen Thirteen and Friends:

Although I am not ignorant of the contentment, our president of our Board of Education bestowed when he invited me to take his place, and, on behalf of the board, deliver this address, I am fully aware of my inability to make such an address as the occasion demands.

If we were selfish I might speak of this class as my class. Mr. Barnes, our worthy principal, might speak of it as his class, or the Board of Education as its class. But the class of 1913 is not my class, it is not Mr. Barnes' class; nor the class of the Board of Education; it is our class; this class belongs to all Newark.

The eighty-five young people composing the class, for twelve years have been a part of the school system of this city, and what they are tonight in intellect, morality, and health, is largely a result of the efficiency or inefficiency of the system of education under which they have been nurtured; and the efficiency of the school system of this city does not depend upon any one factor. There are many constituents in this complex organism which we call the "schools" of the city. There are the buildings and their equipment; the teachers and their preparation; the parents and the home-life; the text-books and the course of study; the city and its government; the Board of Education and the Superintendent; the social and religious life of the city; the industries of the city and child labor; institutions that promote morality and righteousness; immorality and licentiousness; last of all, and the most important of all, is the child. All these and more that I have not mentioned are the factors in this city and in every city, that determine the degree of efficiency that the public school system may attain, and all these have a right to honorable or dishonorable mention at this commencement exercise.

In a panoramic sort of way let us briefly study each for its points of strength and weakness. The first factor that I shall ask you to study is that of our school buildings and their equipment. There are fifteen of them. That large building in the center of the group is our high school, one of the handsomest and best equipped high school buildings in the whole commonwealth. Right back of it among the trees is dear old Central remodeled a time or two, not strictly modern yet, but there clusters around it so much of sentimentalism that it would be as if leaving one's native land never to return to remove it. I have been told that many of Newark's most distinguished citizens were educated here.

Further north you see North Fourth street school, containing eight rooms not beautiful but comfortable, and to its right is Hudson avenue, one of the best small buildings in our city, and still further to the right and behind that cloud of smoke, is Riverside school, a good building, but ruined by its environment.

Let us change our view to something more inviting. That building to the northwest, shaded by beautiful trees, with a well kept lawn and presenting the most aesthetic picture of any building in the city is "Woodside," at present our best grade building. I have heard at least five citizens claim the honor for securing this building to the city, although I am told that the Board of Education was severely criticised at the time of its erection for expending too large a sum upon too large a building. Now every one concedes that it is neither too good nor too large. Changing our view to West Newark, we find two buildings known as the Old and New West. The New West is a massive building and a good one with ten rooms; the Old West has long been unfit for school purposes and will be abandoned at the close of this year, as will be the two old buildings in the South Side. In the East End we have three buildings, all good substantial buildings. These buildings are the East Main, Mill street and Indiana. Our two suburban buildings are the Texas and Franklin, both two room frame buildings and meeting the needs of these sections well.

My picture of our school buildings would not be complete if I did not direct your attention to the three new buildings now about completed. The largest of these is a twelve room building on the South Side and has been named the Hartzler school in honor of Dr. Hartzler who served this city as superintendent of schools for a quarter century. The second largest is the Mound Building of 10 rooms, situated south of the railroad in the West End. The third is located in the extreme northern part of the district and has been named the Keller school in honor of the late David M. Keller, who for many years served the city as a member of the Board of Education.

Recently the Board of Education contracted for a splendid four room addition to the Indiana street building and upon its completion, this eight room building will be known as the Conrad school in honor of the late Charles L. Conrad, who for many years was a member of the board of education and always alert to the best interests of the schools and the city. Every one of these four new buildings will be modern, fire-proof, sound-proof, ventilated, heated, and vacuum-cleaned buildings. Occasionally I hear some criticism of the size and cost of these buildings, but I am sure that within a decade it will be with these as it is with Woodside now—prominent citizens will contend with one another as to who shall have the credit for securing them. Let us conclude this account of our school buildings by saying that when our schools open September next, there will not be a poorly heated, lighted, seated, unsanitary or crowded school room in use in this city, and in my opinion, there is no other city in Ohio that can boast of a better school plant.

The next factor that I desire to discuss is that of the teachers and their preparation. There are 121 of them. You hardly realized that the number was so large. Some of you, when paying your school taxes, have asked "where the money goes." Eighty-five thousand dollars it goes to the teachers of 4000 children. Every teacher who teaches in the high school must be a college or university graduate and have had successful experience. Every teacher in the grade schools must be a high school graduate and have had at least one year of normal training. These high school teachers receive from $700 to $1100 per year, surely not too much for a college trained teacher of successful experience. Grade school teachers receive from $380 to $700 per year, but the majority receive less than $600 per year.

My friends, may I say to you in all candor that the teaching force of this city is not perfect, that we have some teachers who are better adapted to the work than others; some who are better trained than others; some who are more tactful than others; in short, some who are better teachers than others; but, admitting this, I know of no other city that has a more devoted, a more earnest, a more loyal or a better prepared body of teachers for the salaries paid than has the city of Newark.

I hope the time may soon come when every teacher will be a trained teacher, when every child, whether we live in county or town, whether he be in grade school or high school, will have for his teacher a man or woman trained for the service, and there will be no loss to the child because of inefficient teaching, and, when that time comes, I hope the public will be willing to pay such a wage that the teacher who practices economy and gives her life to this service may be able to retire in old age and not to be thrown upon the charity of her friends.

I have discussed our buildings and teachers, and may I now speak briefly about our "Text Books and Course of Study?" These are important elements in a successful school system. A good text book and a successful course of study which they contain upon the extent to which they contain the essential and eliminate the non-essential. By essential and non-essential I do not mean only such matter as can be turned into the making of one's bread and butter. This is of importance, I admit, but if the young men and women graduating here tonight have no higher ideal than that of making a living, then the schools are open to criticism. It is a great thing to make a living—it is a far greater thing to make a life worth living.

It has been the aim of your board of education and superintendent to eliminate from the text books and course of study all obsolete matter; to make the course as flexible as possible, so as to meet the needs of many different natures; to so correlate each step in the course of study as to make it easy to pass from one grade to another and from the 8th grade to the high school. In order to do this it is sometimes necessary to change text books, and I have found that those who clamor most about the inefficiency of the schools also complain the loudest when changes of books or course of study are made. In closing this topic, let me say that I believe the course of study and text books in use in this city are selected upon their merit only, as are the teachers, and that it is my judgment there are still modifications than can be made to advantage; but in making these changes we should never lose sight of the fact that a proper training leads not only to making a living, not only to getting a job; but to honesty, morality and righteous citizenship.

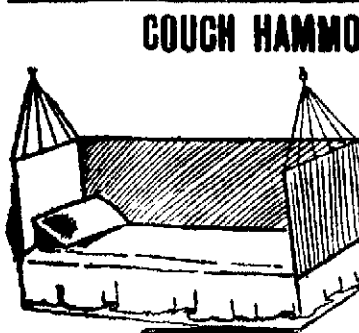

If I were not an employee of the board of education, I should like to speak at length of the part this factor plays in the school system, but I hesitate, because if I commend I may be charged with flattery and if I criticize I may lose my job.

I will venture to say this, that your schools and their efficiency I speak louder than any words I can utter in praise of not only your present board, but preceding boards. I know of no city of 30,000 people in this state that has a better school plant, that has a more carefully selected body of teachers and supervisors, that has a better organized high school or a larger one, that has made more progress in its school system, not only along established lines, but in music, art, manual training, sewing and cooking, and has done so with the same resources, than has the city of Newark within the last decade, and no city in the decade has more to its credit than the year about to close. The achievements of the past year are such as to make none of us ashamed. Our high school enrollment exceeds that of last year by 100 students, more pupils have enrolled in the schools of the city than ever before, the percentage of absence and tardiness is less than for any other year recorded in my office; we present to you tonight the largest and we hope the best graduating class in the history of the city; the harmony that prevails between pupils and teachers, teachers and parents, principals and superintendent, and superintendent and board, and the fact, the spirit of co-operation for the good of the city that is manifest on all sides is commendable and noteworthy. As a fitting climax to this year of constructive progress will be the completion and dedication of the splendid new buildings already described. I could not close this address without mentioning one of the greatest victories of the year, that of the "Playground Movement." This movement, warmly supported by the board of education, the press, the board of trade and other civic organizations, but carried to completion by a campaign waged by high school pupils, has attracted the attention of educators throughout the country, and has received favorable comment in many leading periodicals. Unique because of its marvelous success and because it is the first time such a campaign had been carried to completion by high school pupils during a vacation period. This alone makes the year and class of 1913 memorable in the history of Newark High.

If I had time I should like to continue this discussion until I had brought before you the influence upon the schools of those other factors which I mentioned in the early part of this address, namely the home, social, industrial, religious and the institutional life of the city, factors that we do not usually think of as playing an important part in the educational system of the city. These are the environment under which children live, and they are a most important part. I can not bring this fact to your attention with more force than by repeating this short poem of Walt Whitman— "There was a child went forth every day, And the first object he looked upon that object he became, And that object became a part of him, for the day, for many years, or stretching cycles of years; The early lilacs became a part of this child, The noisy brood of the barn yard, the fish swimming in the clear water, The apple trees in their blossom, the commonest weeds by the roadside. And the old drunkard staggering home from the outhouse of the tavern whence he had lately risen; And the school mistress as she passed on her way to school, all became a part of him; And the friendly boys, and the tidy and fresh cheeked girls, And the barefoot negro boy and girl, And all the changes of city and country wherever he went. His own parents, he that had fathered him, she that had given him birth, They gave this child themselves, they gave him that that followed after him every day, they became a part of him. The mother at home, quietly placing the dishes upon the supper table, The father, strong, self-sufficient, manly, mean, angry, or unjust; The blow, the quick loud word, the tight bargain, the crafty lure, the dishonest sale, all became a part of him; Men and women crowding fast in the streets, The streets themselves, the houses, the goods, the windows, vehicles and teams. The village in the highlands, the valleys and rivers below, Shadows and sunsets, and sunrises, All became a part of him. All these became a part of that child, who went forth every day, Who now goes forth, and who will always go forth every day. Friends, there is a marvelous truth in these lines—there is an argument set forth in the lines that I have quoted that we too little think about. If the sentiment of Walt Whitman's poem be true, and it is true, should we not be honest? Should we not be true? Here we find our argument against vice in all its various forms, here we see the reasons why the houses of shame and degradation that infest our cities must be blotted out, why we are appealing for noble manhood and chaste motherhood, here is the argument that calls for beautiful homes, clean streets, for libraries and art (Continued on Page 6, Col. 2)

That beautiful, even shade of dark glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. While it is a messy, tedious task it will repay those whose hair is turning gray, faded and streaked.
Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.
Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get better help from the tonic; 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use.

This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.
Every body chooses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw this through the hair, taking one strand at a time which do not at a few moments. Do it at night and by morning the gray hair has disappeared and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.
It certainly helps folks look years younger and twice as attractive, says a well-known downtown druggist. Hall's drug store, 10 North Side Square, agent.

Wisdom from Washington

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, June 13.—[Special.]—It is very easy to get up a furor over almost anything that attracts the attention of all the people for a time, but the furor does not last very long. Almost without effort by their advocates there is a demand for certain kinds of legislation, but oftentimes the demand fades away before the bill can reach final consideration.

Years ago, on account of a case of hazing at one of the military institutions, a public sentiment was worked up to such a pitch that a bill was actually rushed through the house having such a drastic character that it is doubtful whether the young men could have stayed in the institution unless they became too good to be officers. The senate took hold of it, and after debate and consideration a very sensible hazing law was passed and one which works hard enough on the students.

Protecting Presidents.

After McKinley was shot there was enough drastic legislation proposed to shut out of the country every anarchist, and give the Socialists a pretty close run. But it was talked up one side and down the other, and finally nothing was done. Members of congress came to the conclusion that if the secret service men and the president's official family could not protect him, drastic laws would not help.

"If any man wants to kill me so badly that he will sacrifice his life for the purpose, neither I nor any law can stop him," was the remark of Roosevelt when some one said that he needed greater protection. And so we go along as before, with a few secret service men always near the president whose duty it is to see that no strangers or cranks get close to him.

Butchering the Beautiful.

Those who have money and who want to make money have succeeded in making a farce out of "Beautiful Washington." There was a time when the national capital had possibilities of becoming the most beautiful city in the world, but the day has long past. Ugly apartment houses have reared their unsightly bulks above the trees, removal of trees from business streets has uncovered the cheap and ill looking structures which housed people in the days of Clay and Webster.

Real estate speculators have had their hand in preventing a substantial growth in residential sections. Parks have been neglected. But about the worst has been the erection of a hideous post office structure beside the fine Union railway station and large apartment houses which cut off a view of the most expensive and finest bridge in the city.

Removed Stables.

But all has not been forgotten. The White House stables, which for a quarter of a century—perhaps twice that length of time—have stood in front of the state department, affording a view for the diplomats who called on the secretary of state, have been removed. How it ever happened has not been told, but they have vanished. There is still hope for the "City Beautiful."

An Old Difficulty.

It develops that there is still a great deal of hesitancy among the people to amend the constitution after they have been given an opportunity. How slow has been the process in regard to the income tax! Also it begins to look as if they may not be able to get three-fourths of the states to agree to the election of senators by direct vote of the people after all the fuss that has been made about that subject. The inclination of the people to go slow in these matters lends force to the statements of the progressives that if they had the initiative and referendum and the recall the people would not use their power very often.

An Early Bird.

Jim Tawney is not only in on the ground floor, but he entered the sub-cellar. He has nominated Colonel Goethals, the canal builder, for the Republican nomination in 1916. And he probably doesn't know whether the colonel is a Republican or a Democrat. Jim is a very sleek politician, and he is in no danger in making nominations at this time, although he held a job under Taft. And in less than four years our people may not be so fascinated with their animal as they are at the present time.

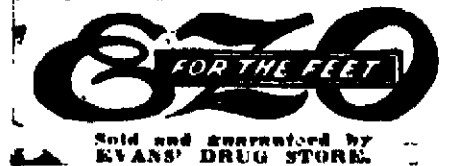

Real Cornmeal.

"You can't get good cornmeal nowadays," remarked Congressman Shackelford of Missouri, "because unless you are in the back districts good cornmeal is ground between the old fashioned burrs or stones and is not crushed so fine that you lose all taste of the corn. No one likes corn bread any better than I do, but I don't get it in Washington. I get it in Missouri, though, when it is ground in the old mills."

It's a Snap

BUT it's a short, decisive one. Good dressers will have to be quick. We captured about one hundred sample garments in men's and young men's models of high-class make style and fabric. They comprise about 25 Norfolk—17 English models—32 young men's two button sack suits and about 26 men's three button conservative styles, in regular and extra sizes. The colors are grey—club—checks—tan mixtures—black and blue pin stripes—fancy and plain serges.

Included are garments that were made to retail as $25.00 and none could be tagged regularly for less than $18.00. We divided them into two lots and put them on sale tomorrow at CORNELL'S REGULAR PRICES— and music, and playgrounds, all these that the child, your child and my child may live in an environment that will elevate them, for their environment becomes a part of them.

And now, Mr. President of the Board of Education, I have the honor of presenting to you and this city our class of 1913, composed of 85 members, 42 boys and 43 girls. The schools of this city have played their part, how well only the future conduct of these young people will prove. It is my hope and prayer that success may await every member of this class, and as each struggles to reach the summit of the hill of success, that none will meet a classmate coming down that hill. And to the members of the class, let me say for parting words, that we shall ever be ready to assist you, that although you are leaving the schools, you shall still be in our hearts, and should you forget everything else that has been said tonight, remember this—that to make a living is not so great as to live a life rich with service to your city, your state, your country and your God.

The evening's printed program listed the class enrollment, officers of the class, the twenty-eight High School instructors, and membership of the board of education. Class officers are: E. Gray Swingle, president; Isabelle Stewart Somers, secretary; Ralph W. Laughlin, vice president, and Paul B. Edwards, treasurer.

NINE STUDENTS GRADUATE FROM ST. FRANCIS DE SALES SCHOOL THURSDAY EVENING

The commencement exercises of St. Francis de Sales High School were held at the St. Francis de Sales church on Thursday evening and six young women and three young men received their diplomas as graduates from the school.

The ceremony impressed all as being especially fitting for the close of a school life which strived not only to educate and cultivate the intellect, but which aimed to bring all to a higher degree of spirituality, and larger and broader aims for life. It seemed to make education a greater and better thing than ever before.

At 7.30 o'clock the procession of graduates entered the church. It was led by a standard bearer, the standard being surmounted by a cross, and from it were festooned streamers of lavender ribbon and opes of snail, the class colors being lavender and green. The festoons were carried by eight little lower girls gowned in white and wearing wreaths of honeysuckle. Then followed the girls in their graduating gowns of white with white hats and their arms filled with flowers. The young men of the class completed the procession.

At the close of a hymn by the choir, Rev. Father L. W. Mulhane, of St. Vincent, took the pulpit and delivered the commencement address. Father Mulhane is a well-known orator and spoke as follows:

We have assembled here this evening to witness the final honors bestowed upon the class that tonight bids goodbye to the school of St. Francis de Sales and it would not be amiss to touch very briefly upon one of the burning questions of the day.

"Education." We are sometimes apt to forget the unforeseen forces often unheralded that affect the growth of national life. Standing at the threshold of this 20th century we have to face and it is possible to solve some of the greatest and gravest questions that have ever agitated the minds of humanity and the questions swell up from the heart of mankind—where shall we find the solution of these problems?

Government is rocking on its throne and the question daily arises is government of the people by the people a failure. It will not be if the people from day to day do not forget that as they turn the pages of history there is one lesson pointed out on each page, one light flashing down the centuries, and that is, that there can be no permanent civilization unless founded upon the bedrock of Christianity. We may form and fashion a system of government but if we take away the sunlight of Christian teaching we stunt the plant and spoil its aroma. False doctrines and false prophets are heard in the land and they hold out fair promises that will give but dust and ashes so far as results are concerned. * * * In the fundamental laws of this state of Ohio the Act of July, 1877, we read "Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and happiness of mankind schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

The writer of that great document was choice and vigorous in his language. It is just as though it was written, but without religion, morality and knowledge, good government is impossible. But why was it added that schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged unless it was understood that all these essentials to human happiness should be taught? The Catholic system of education is founded on this very principle and that very reason is today a strong bulwark of good government.

The Catholic Church teaches the rising generation that there can be no permanent civil, social or political establishment unless based on the laws of God and preserved by the obedience to his ten commandments. It is the fashion, or I might better say the folly of the day to imagine that we may grow and become great, mighty and powerful without God and his laws. But never was there written a more destructive doctrine than to write it down that man can live without God. Men have tried it and failed. Countries have tried it and failed.

You may read, you may study the stars, stones, trees and flowers and they will bring you sooner or later as they have brought all truly great men to God. * * * A Christian education is the only complete one, the only one to satisfy all the wants of human nature. We need this education in this great republic of ours to preserve unshaken our privileges and to ward off the dangers of an irreligious generation. Tell me all the truths of science but add the greatest of all the science of the knowledge of Him who said: "You shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

In the turmoil of this modern life we need balance of mind, and balance of Love to keep us as individuals and as a people in balance of the laws of God. * * * I am sure I voice the sentiments of all here this evening when I invoke the blessing of God upon these pupils whom we name and honor tonight, the graduates, as well as upon their clergy and teachers. May the lessons of their school days only be the first pages of the book of good lives and good deeds, honor to God, country and humanity.

At the conclusion of the address Rev. Father B. M. O'Boylan before distributing the diplomas, spoke a few words to the class. He complimented them on the work done and expressed himself as being especially well pleased with the graduating essays delivered on Wednesday night at the class day exercises. Father O'Boylan said:

"The most important part of education is the formation of character. Character is life dominated by principles. Principles are convictions deeply rooted in the mind and applied to life in action. The great object of life and school is to make character. In the school life which intermingles with the church the character is formed and the pupils are taught how to preserve it. They become cultured in every sense of the word.

"The greatest curse of education, however, is that it separates the child from the home, especially in the higher classes of education. There are two kinds of education, formal and informal. The formal is that provided for in the curriculum of the school. The informal is that obtained in the surroundings and environment. The ideal place for the informal education is in the home. There is a tone which must attune to the life of the child. The father and mother must harmonize with the life of the child. Great men have had great homes, whether these homes be rich or poor.

You graduates must keep up this informal education obtained in the home, no matter what profession you seek. Choose well your companions for the future, because they will be instrumental in your success or failure."

Wishing them success and strength to continue the ideal life of their school days, Rev. Father O'Boylan, as pastor of the church and head of the school, awarded the diplomas to the following graduates:

Misses Alice Callahan, Justina Vimeley, Cecelia Adam, Anna White, Anna Cross, Evelyn Bradley, Messrs. John McCabe, James Donnelly and James Moran.

The exercises concluded with one of the most impressive ceremonies of the church, the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, which was given by Rev. Father Charles Watterson, pastor of the church of the Blessed Sacrament. Assisting in the services were the Reverend Fathers Dunne, O'Brien and Ryan.

In the intermission between the delivery of the diplomas and the benediction a beautiful violin solo was given by Miss Pauline Phelan, with Miss Carrie Brennan as organ accompanist.

The church was never more beautiful than Thursday evening, the large center altar was filled with a profusion of red roses and peonies and myriads of candle added to the beauty. The tabernacle was draped with puffs of chiffon and numerous electric lights were lighted on each spire of the altar.

Alexander Scott, Editor, Sentenced to Prison by Paterson Court

Alexander Scott, editor of the Weekly Issue, the paper which defended the strikers in the silk mills at Paterson, N. J., the home of American anarchists, was given an indeterminate sentence of from one to fifteen years for publishing an editorial which contained this paragraph:

"Paterson was once famous as the city of the Reds, the home of anarchists. The anarchists talked a whole lot and made some noise, but they never harmed a hair on any one's head. Now Paterson has become infamous as the city of the blues, the hothead of brass buttoned anarchists. These police anarchists, headed by the boss anarchist Binson, not only believe in lawlessness, but they practice it. They don't waste words with workmen—they simply crack their heads."

Few states have a law similar to that under which Scott was convicted. The act was passed soon after the assassination of President McKinley. It provides heavy punishment for holding up to ridicule any part of the government of a state or the United States. New Jersey also has a law which makes it a crime to work on Sunday, and another forbidding the expression of unbelief in Christianity.

MARTINSBURG.

The will of the late Johnson Sims was filed for probate Friday. Dr. N. S. Toland and William Sims witnessed the will and Fred J. Freese is named as executor.

The following from a distance attended the funeral of Johnson Sims on Wednesday: Mrs. Lottie Tilton, Earle Tilton, Mrs. L. W. Chick, Tom Chick, Miss Laura Floyd and William Sims of Columbus; Mrs. Alice Beasley, S. C. Alsford, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Freese and son Herbert of Newark; Mrs. Mary Sims and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sims of Fredericktown.

Dr. W. E. Shrontz has purchased a Paige car and Geo. Schooler a Buick machine.

The I. O. O. F. memorial services were conducted Sunday afternoon, a large crowd being present.

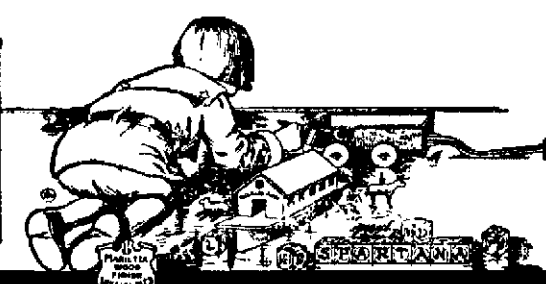

A good number of our people attended children's services at the hall, Sunday evening.

The Human Procession

Mr. Money, Author of "Riches and Poverty" is 45 Today.

Thanks to the assiduity of newspaper "column conductors," the world has been informed of many cases in which professions or occupations have been adopted to fit surnames. Dr. See, of course, is an eye specialist. The Rev. Tye is a "marrying parson." Adolph Just is a judge. Randolph Cheat was a lawyer, until the courts granted him permission to change his name. Jimmy Smart, is, of course, a newspaper reporter. Rabbi Wise is one of the most learned of Hebrew scholars. Dr. Kill is a surgeon. The list might be extended to fill many columns, with nothing lacking except a baseball umpire named Jesse James.

Leo George Chiozza Money is not a banker, as those unfamiliar with his career might suspect, but he is internationally famous as an authority on financial matters, and as the author of "Riches and Poverty," and other books dealing with fiscal problems. Mr. Money was born in Genoa of an Italian father and an English mother, forty-three years ago today. He began his career as a writer on the staff of the London Commercial Intelligence, of which publication he was for many years the managing editor. Although he has been a liberal member of Parliament, and still affiliates with the Liberal party, he is also a collectivist and a Fabian socialist. He is one of a very few writers on financial and economic subjects who can make statistics interesting. His various books on free trade and other issues, especially "Riches and Poverty" and "Waste and Want," have been widely read and commented on in America at same time paying his own way.

LaFollette a Vegetarian.
Robert Marion LaFollette, Wisconsin's famous senator, will pass his fifty-eighth milestone tomorrow, but nobody who knows him ever thinks of him as anything but a youngster. The Badger Solon attributes his youthfulness and vitality to a vegetarian diet. He is not a fastidious, but he is thoroughly convinced that in his own case "meat is poison."

Senator LaFollette is a native of Wisconsin, and was born at Primrose on June 14, 1855. He had a strenuous youth, aiding in the support of his mother, brothers and sisters, and through the University of Wisconsin. He was twenty-five when admitted to the bar, and in the same year began his political career as district attorney of Dane county. In his youth he heard Col. Ingersoll, and the eloquence of that great orator aroused in "Bob" an ambition to learn to do things with a voice. He succeeded admirably and was only thirty years of age when he persuaded the voters of the Third Wisconsin district to send him to Washington. As a member of the ways and means committee of the House, he took a prominent part in framing the McKinley Bill. After three terms as governor of Wisconsin, he was sent to the United States senate, where he speedily became the leader of the progressive element. He was a prominent candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination last year, until Col. Roosevelt entered the lists, which is why "Bob" now never loses an opportunity to express his love and admiration for "Teddy."

The Badger lawmaker owes no small part of his political success to his accomplished wife. Mrs. LaFollette campaigned for her husband, when, a youth of thirty, he first ran for Congress. Last year she took the stump in behalf of her "Bob's" Presidential aspirations.

"I want others who suffer from skin troubles to know that there is no other remedy equal to Saxo Salve, I had a serious trouble with my hands. It was like a burn in appearance but it itched and smarted dreadfully. My doctor called it eczema. The first application of Saxo Salve relieved them and soon cured them entirely and for cracks in the fingers Saxo Salve does wonders."—Mrs. W. C. Greve, Binghamton, N. Y.

Letters like the above are continually coming in proving that the penetrating antiseptic and healing power of Saxo Salve is remarkable in all kinds of eczema, salt-rheum, tetter, barber's itch or any skin affection.

SEND MODELS OF SCHOOL HOUSES BY PARCEL POST

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, June 13. Despatching of one, two and four room school houses by parcel post is the newest feature adopted by the United States bureau of education. The school houses are not intended for actual use but are models on which to erect structures in small communities. They are of card board architecturally correct and altogether complete in hygienic detail. Already a number have been sent to points in the west and southwest where the erection of school houses is contemplated. They were designed by Dr. F. B. Fessler, the bureau's specialist in school hygiene.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS ASTONISHED

RHEUMA Affects Kidneys, Liver and Blood the First Day—and Out Goes Uric Acid Poison.

Anybody can afford to pay 50 cents to get rid of terrible Rheumatism, Sciatica or Gout, and that's all RHEUMA costs at Evans' drug store, and they say if it doesn't do all that is claimed for it, money back.

It's wonderful how speedily this simple remedy takes hold and how the sore muscles limber up and the swollen joints come down to normal. Make no mistake—RHEUMA costs but little, but it's the best remedy you can find to drive Rheumatic poison from the system and bring back health to misery-racked bodies.

"I had Rheumatism for a long while, and tried many medicines, but was not cured until I used RHEUMA. I cannot praise RHEUMA too highly. My advice to those suffering from Rheumatism is to use this great remedy, as I believe it will effect a permanent cure in any case."—C. B. Lanham, Sattles, W. Va., April 27, 1912.

Commission Wants Expert Assistants on Government Jobs

(Associated Press Telegram)
Washington, June 13.—With the gigantic task ahead of it of appraising the physical property of the railroads of the United States, the interstate commerce commission today sent out an appeal for expert assistants.

Through the civil service commission dates have set for the examination of men acquainted with railroad operation and construction and who aspire to enter the service of the government.

The interstate commerce commission wants a large staff of structural electrical mechanical, railway, signal and civil engineers; inspectors of car equipment and motive power and architects. The salaries will range from $1,000, the lowest to $1,800 but as the work will be mainly done away from Washington, expenses will be allowed while on duty.

The civil service commission expect a general response to its call and has fixed July 21 as the closing date on which applications will be received by it.

THE ACID TEST BRIGHT'S DISEASE

10 grammes Picric Acid.
10 grammes Citric Acid.
Water to make one litre.

Equal quantities of this reagent and specimen from case of Bright's Disease in test tube will, in 24 hours, show the percentage of albumen. Put the patient on Fulton's Renal Compound. Test every few days for twenty days and you will know to a certainty whether the albumen is decreasing or not. (As the albumen decreases the microscope commonly shows the casts also to be disappearing). Thus the Fulton's Renal Compound lessens the escape of albumen and permits recovery in many cases of Bright's Disease no one need doubt. (Usually takes from ten to twenty days to begin to show).

The new agent is a mild infusion without opiates or heart stimulants. The substance of the formula surrounds each bottle. Its action being on Renal degeneration prescriptions do not conflict. Commonly gets recoveries alone where there is a fair heart and recuperative power.

With failure admitted in chronic cases on the orthodox treatment, relatives of patients having Bright's Disease owe it to themselves and the patients to put the above to the test. Fulton's Renal Compound can be had at F. D. Hall's drug store.

For pamphlet on our investigation into the curability of Bright's Disease, write John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco.

PUT AWAY PICKLES

Mathematician Figures Out the Food Question.

If anyone requires a clear head it is a teacher of mathematics. He must reason in the abstract as it were, and full concentration of mind is necessary if correct results are to be forthcoming.

An Ohio man writes: "I am a teacher of mathematics and for 15 years prior to four years ago, I either took a lunch composed of cold sandwiches, pickles, etc. to school or hurried home and quickly ate a hot dinner."

"The result was that I went to my afternoon work feeling heavy, dull of brain, and generally out of sorts. Finally I learned about Grape-Nuts food and began to use it for my noon-day lunch."

"From the first I experienced a great change for the better. The heavy, unpleasant feeling and sour stomach caused by the former diet disappeared. The drowsy languor dissipated to work soon gave way to a brightness and vim in my afternoon work, a feeling entirely new to me."

"My brain responds promptly to the requirements put upon it, and what is of more importance, the results have been lasting and more satisfactory, the longer I have used Grape-Nuts as a food."

"My wife had been suffering from weak stomach accompanied by sick headaches nearly all her life. She is invariably relieved of these when she sticks to Grape-Nuts, either eaten dry or with milk. Her stomach has gradually grown stronger and her headaches less frequent since she began to eat Grape-Nuts."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co. Battle Creek, Mich. Read the booklet "The Road to Well-being" in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

When You Are Tired Mentally. Are you weary? Breathe more; eat less.

Active exercise will not rest you from mental work.

"When you are tired with mental work," says a well known physician, "do not think you must take active exercise. That will make you more weary. All you need is rest and more air in your lungs. Sit down quietly and comfortably and breathe deeply twenty-five times. Rest a moment and repeat. This air forced into the body removes the waste material which makes you weary."

"Don't eat all you want. Food is not needed for support of the system is so much extra work for the body and requires more air to dispose of it."

"This regimen will diminish your grocery bill and save your shoe leather."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Quite a Difference.

When the Baroness Burdett-Coutts was Miss Coutts, the great heiress, it was rumored that she was to wed the Duke of Wellington. A friend asked the duke if the rumor was true, and the duke answered irritably:

"I said Miss Angela Coutts deserved to be a duchess. I never said that I would make her one."

This observation of the duke's was repeated to the heiress. She, flushed on hearing it, smiled a little bitterly and remarked:

"The duke should have said 'could,' not 'would.'"

His Only Subject.

Mr. Van Vorst in a recent book tells a story of a dinner at Chicago given by the ambitious wife of a millionaire tanner. The lady noticed, to her annoyance, that her husband did not speak a word to their smart guests, and when she got an opportunity she whispered angrily, "Why don't you talk?"

"What's the good?" replied the tanner contemptuously. "There ain't one of 'em as knows a thing about leather."

An Odd Business.

"Insurance people are queer."

"How so?"

"First they convince you that you may die within a week to get you to apply for a policy; then they live ten years and years before they'll issue it."—Boston Transcript.

FRIDAY THE 13TH IS MISS ADELE RITCHIE'S HAPPY WEDDING DAY.

Greenwich, Conn., June 13—Adele Ritchie, the actress, who leased the Apple Jack farm here from J. K. Berry last year and has since been farming it alone, at times receiving advice from Charles Nelson Bell, a Fifth avenue (New York) importer, decided to take Mr. Bell in partnership and purchase the farm, and the two were married at the farm today, Friday, June 13, at the thirtieth hour of the day. It was a coincidence only that the figures 13 appear so often, but after discovering the fact Miss Ritchie decided, she says, to prove her disbelief in "hoodoos" and stick to her original plan.

HIDDEN IN BASS VIOL MAN CROSSES LINE

Escapes Serving in Austrian Army by Novel Means.

Canton, O.—Peter Cocan, thirty-six years old, was literally carried away by music. He reached Canton from Lissa, Hungary, after crossing the Hungarian border in a huge bass viol on the back of a husky Roumanian disguised as a gypsy musician.

Cocan brought first hand stories of the warlike preparations of Austria-Hungary for hostilities with Montenegro. He was himself drafted to serve in the army. He was just about to leave for America. He did not want to serve. Efforts to obtain passports failed. Each time he attempted to cross the border he was turned back by Hungarian soldiers who patrol the frontier.

Determined to come to Canton at all hazards, he hit upon the plan of concealing himself in the bass viol. A companion concealed himself in a bass drum. Friends disguised as itinerant musicians carried them over the frontier.

At one time they were stopped by a party of soldiers, who compelled the musicians to play upon the instruments in which Cocan and his companion were concealed. They escaped detection at this time, and, after crossing the border, they walked several miles to a railroad.

"It was a thrilling experience," said Cocan, who has taken a job in a Canton mill. "As I lay in the big bass viol I could hear the musicians parading with the soldiers. Soon I heard a scraping of the strings. They played a popular song. Then the soldiers allowed us to depart over the border in peace, and we were safe."

HEIR REWEDS IN RIGHT NAME.

Englishman and Wife Have Second Nuptials—To Claim Estate.

San Diego, Cal.—Mr. and Mrs. Douglas F. Davis of Point Loma, Cal., were married here for the second time and later left for New York to sail for Maidenhead, England. At the ceremony, with their infant child present, the couple changed their names to Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas Bishop and thereby qualified for two English estates.

Mr. Bishop is a son of the late James Bishop of Maidenhead, who was the owner of a large property. Because of family difficulties the son left home eleven years ago, assuming the name of Davis. He came to San Diego in 1910 and married Miss Mary Keith, a society girl.

A year ago a relative left him $100,000. He was traced to southern California. On a train one day Bishop sat behind the chief of police of San Diego.

ESKIMO GOES FOR BRIDE.

Gets Schooling, Lack of Which Once Caused His Rejection.

Seattle, Wash.—Paul Patkotak, an eighteen-year-old Eskimo, will soon sail for Point Barrow, the arctic extremity of Alaska, on the schooner Transit to claim the hand of Miss Alice Ablook, native teacher in the Point Barrow government school, who refused to marry him three years ago because of his lack of education.

When he was rejected by Miss Ablook the youth trapped enough arctic foxes to pay for a year's tutelage and worked his passage to Seattle. Here he was permitted to enter one of the grammar schools because of the knowledge he had gained at the Point Barrow school. His summer vacations were spent with a fishing fleet. During the last year he has learned shorthand, typewriting and bookkeeping in addition to his other studies.

Patkotak came south clad in furs. He will return dressed in American clothing.

BY A WISE FARMER.

That was a wise remark made by a speaker in a farmers' institute when he said that "good farm judgment consisted largely in understanding principles and their working, and as good an understanding of conditions to know if the principles will apply."

Limitations of Fame.

In Professor Knight's reminiscences of Tennyson it is related that on one occasion when the poet laureate was stopping at an inn in the island of Skye the landlord was asked if he knew who had been staying in his house, and on being informed that it was the poet Tennyson, he replied:

"Lor, to think o' that! And, sure, I thought he was shentleman."

At Stirling some one asked the landlord of the house where the poet was stopping:

"Do you ken who you had wi' you t'other night?"

"Naa, but he was a plesant shentleman."

"It was Tennyson, the poet."

"And wha' may he be?"

"Oh, he is a writer o' verses sich as ye see i' the papers!"

"Noo, to think o' that! Jest a pooblie writer, and I gied him ma best bedroom!"

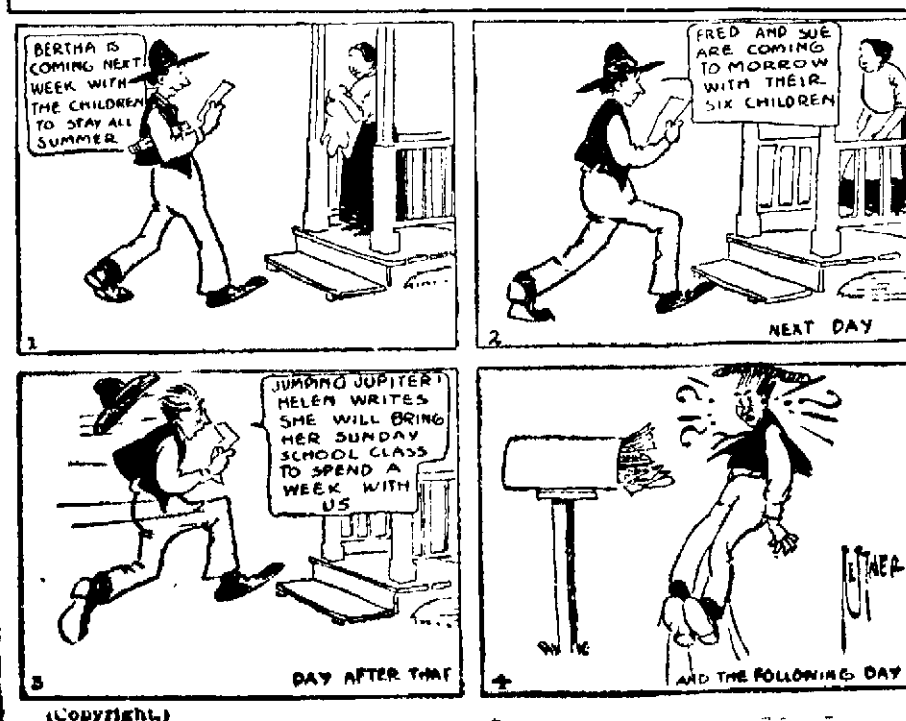

But the charms of Mrs. Tennyson, her gracious manners, did not pass unnoticed, for the landlord said, "Oh, she was an angel!"

THE DOG ON THE FARM.

Get a Good One and Train Him Properly is an Excellent Rule.

Every farmer should have a dog. A well trained dog, no one will dispute, is the most companionable of all animals and a labor saver to the farmer, said a correspondent of the Orange Journal Farmer. Systematic instruction should be used in drilling the mind and body of the animal to bring out the intelligence and good tempered dog well treated and good tempered dog is one of the most agreeable creatures to have about the farm.

It is a paying investment to the owner to take pains in training a dog. In the house he should be taught thorough cleanliness, and when once this is established the animal is miserable and less it can get out of doors when nature demands it. When the dog is young, say two or three months old, he should be fed in small quantities. Never permit him to eat to his own satisfaction, because the ultimate result will be a very sick and unhappy little puppy. It is well to give him his last meal about two hours before he is shut up for the night.

Commenced mixed with water a very little salt and a handful of mucky chopped liver or meat thrown in, the whole baked in a cake and when cold broken in bits and fed to the dog makes a very good supper. A great many people insist on giving their pets bread and milk for the evening meal, but this is not a very desirable diet if the dog is to be shut up in the house all night.

There are a great number of tricks which may be taught a dog, but the farm dog should not necessarily be taught tricks. He should be taught sensible things.

A great many, and I may say nearly 90 per cent of the dog owners of the present day, allow their dogs to run recklessly about through their neighbors' gardens, crops, etc. This is a very invidious piece of business. It not only brings about a hard feeling, but is absolutely uncalled for.

"HOME OF GOOD SHOES"

CHAT WITH THINKING WOMEN by Barbara Boyd

The Rest Vacation

NEARLY everyone's thoughts just now are turning to the subject of vacation. And the more tired one is, the more does the thought of vacation appeal. One can hardly wait for the time to come when the routine duties of the day can be cast aside, and one do just exactly what one pleases.

And what shall the one who is altogether worn out please to do for a vacation? Usually she chooses what most people choose for a vacation—gayety, excitement, possibly travel. It is the one time in the year when the shackles of work can be thrown off, and so she indulges herself in that, of which perhaps she has so little during the rest of the year.

But such a vacation is not always of benefit to the one whose strength and nerve-force are depleted. Rest and quiet are her best friends; and a rest vacation would be the wisest sort of holiday she could take.

But many do not look kindly upon a rest vacation. To them it seems like a dose of medicine. And they do not want to spend the only time in the year they can call their own in taking medicine.

But the right kind of rest vacation can be very enjoyable; and when in addition its benefits are taken into consideration, the tired woman will find it will yield her far more pleasure than any other sort of holiday.

If her means will permit her to go away, let her seek the most beautiful spot she can find. The first requisite of the place in which to spend her holiday should be quiet; but the second should be beauty. It should be a spot that, no matter where her eyes rest, they will always feast on loveliness. She should be able to lie out-doors for hours in a hammock, or stretched on the grass, and drink in beauty—of mountains or lakes, or flashing river or peaceful pastoral scenes—whatever may be her preference. For the very loveliness of nature will soothe and rest and invigorate.

If she cannot afford to go from home for her vacation, then she will find it helpful to take little trips to some nearby quiet, pretty nook. She should not go to walk or in any way exert herself; but simply to sit quiet or lie prone on Mother Earth and drink in, with eyes and mind, the beauty of the growing things about her. An hour or so spent idly this way watching the birds, studying the flowers is wonderfully invigorating.

Busy women there are who spend their vacation at a sanatorium being massaged and bathed and dieted, and spending most of the time in bed. And they go forth made-over women. But such a vacation is indeed too much like a dose of medicine to appeal to all. And where one can get away from the associations of sickness, surely it is better. And a rest vacation, properly planned, can give as much rest as one can get at a sanatorium, and in addition, the freedom from the paraphernalia of sickness, and the communion with nature, that in themselves are tonic.

If you are utterly worn out, why not plan for yourself a thoroughly enjoyable rest vacation?

IN PRISON 41 YEARS; TO START NEW LIFE

Abe Buzzard, Outlaw-Evangelist, Free at Sixty-one.

Philadelphia.—Forty-one of his sixty-one years having been spent behind prison bars, Abe Buzzard, the notorious outlaw-evangelist, has been released from the Eastern penitentiary.

Speaking of his Jekyll and Hyde career, Buzzard says:

"The world owed me a good living, and I collected the debt the best that I knew how. I was not used right the first time I was arrested, and had I not been blamed for crimes I never committed I would have resorted to the life that I have led."

"I am converted now and realize that it does not pay to think that you are going to get away with the kind of stuff that I used to pull. I'm going to shake the dust of Pennsylvania from my feet and go to the Pacific coast. I've learned to be a cobbler, and I'm going into the shoe business where no one will know me and where I will have a chance to start life over again."

Buzzard began stealing at the age of fifteen, when he and three brothers organized a gang to raid farms in the Welch mountains. When twenty he began serving a ten year term in Lancaster county. He broke out of jail and was recaptured several months later.

After serving several other sentences he was released from Cherry Hill in 1901. Then it was he professed reformation and began preaching. He did his evangelistic work during the day and stole poultry at night. In the course of a few months he stole 1,800 chickens and 7,500 turkeys from the farmers in and about Reading and Lancaster.

Lady Churston, Once Denise Orme, is Missing

Lady Churston who was once Denise Orme, a popular singer and actress is missing from London, and Scotland Yard has been asked to find her. She was married to the Hon John Yarde-Buller in 1907, when he was a captain in the Scots Guards and heir to the second Baron Churston. Later the captain was said by Mrs. Mabel Louise Atherton for breach of promise, and though she won she got no damages. Then Lady Churston reappeared on the stage and it was believed she had left her husband.

On Your Knees.
I remember climbing the Weissborn above Zernat valley, with two guides. My leading guide stood aside to let me be the first on the top. And I, with the long labor of the climb over and exhilarated by the thought of the great view awaiting me, but forgetful of the high gale that was blowing on the other side of the rocks, sprang eagerly up and stood erect to see the view. ATTY-GENERAL MAKES WAR ON SEVEN TRUSTS

Washington.—Attorney General McReynolds intends to prosecute most vigorously all corporations and individuals suspected of violating the anti-trust law.

The attorney general has begun and is directing several important investigations which may lead to new or renewed prosecution of those who, Mr. McReynolds has reason to believe, are breaking or evading the Sherman law. His investigators are looking into the affairs of:

First.—James A. Patten and others alleged to have formed a pool in cotton on the New York market.

Second.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad transportation monopoly in New England, as it is termed.

Third.—The telephone trust which, it is charged, exists in the states of Washington and Oregon.

Fourth.—The American Smelter and Refining company, especially with respect to its control of the Federal Smelter company and its acquisition of that company's stock.

Fifth.—The American Tobacco company.

The attorney general is dissatisfied with the decision the government obtained in the case of the American Tobacco company.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

Attorney General McReynolds, retained in the United States supreme court. He wishes to test the law again to learn if the order for the company's dissolution cannot be made more effective. The company's retail cigar stores are maintained under the first decision.

Sixth.—The Standard Oil company. The renewed action contemplated against this company would be based on the charge that it has not complied with the United States supreme court's order directing it to dissolve into its constituent companies. The decrees in this case have all been handed down and the lower federal court has approved the dissolution plan presented by the company. The contempt, which may be charged, would lie in the alleged failure by the company officers to obey strictly the dissolution plan agreed on.

Seventh.—The anthracite carrying railroads and their allied coal mining companies for their 65 per cent carrier contracts with the independent mining companies. These contracts were held to have been in violation of law, but the decision was modified later by the supreme court so as to exclude a number of the contracts.

Mr. McReynolds is moving to enforce the anti-trust laws on the assumption that congress will give him all the money necessary for the work. Officials of the Taft administration contended that they were embarrassed by the failure of congress to appropriate $60,000 to enable them to conclude pending investigations. Mr. McReynolds is working now under the appropriation then allowed to Attorney General Wickersham. Before its adjournment congress could make a deficiency appropriation for the department of justice should it become necessary. The department has not asked for more money yet.

Orange, N. J.—The ministers of the Oranges have asked the physicians there to take part in a conference which is to be held on June 16 in the parish house of Grace Episcopal church here, on the advisability of urging regulations requiring health certificates from those about to be married. The invitation was received by the Orange Medical society in a letter from the Ministerial association of the Oranges which asked the medical men to send reports to the conference.

THE UP-TO-DATE GOWN

REFLECTOR CO. TO CLEVELAND BY AUGUST 1

Will Double Capacity Under New Scheme of Systematizing Big Amalgamation.

Following out plans for an amalgamation of numerous Ohio interests of the General Electric company, officials of the big concern announce that the Newark Reflector works in its entirety will be removed to Cleveland by August 1, where its capacity and output will be doubled. The arrangement includes an advance in position for practically all of the 100 employees of the company here.

Messrs. Chas. H. Case, C. P. A., representing Nau, Rusk & Swearingen, certified public accountants of New York and Cleveland, Chas. H. Fisher, auditor of the Tungstolier company of the General Electric company, from Conneaut, O., and A. E. Grover, expert cost man, are here in the interest of the amalgamation.

These men are here as experts with a contract with the General Electric company for systematizing accounts and general operation. This plan includes numerous new commercial ideas being adopted as a means of solving the cost problem for big concerns and, incidentally, providing a means of closer relationship between employer and employees.

One of the pronounced activities in this direction is the adoption of the group plan for buildings of the amalgamated interests in what is known as Nela Park, Collinwood, Cleveland. This park, deriving its name from the initials of the National Electric Lighting association comprises a territory equivalent to about six city blocks. In buildings here erected will be installed the factories of the Newark Reflector works, the Conneaut, and the Amboy works, from Perth Amboy, N. J. Newark is the only one of the towns from which the entire machinery and equipment must be removed.

Among the many reforms to be introduced under the new system is the certificate plan, an idea originated by Mr. Glen C. Webster, general manager of the Tungstolier works of the General Electric company, and providing a more reliable gauge of proficiency of employees. By this method employees are required to pass examinations on which certificates are allowed as indications of their eligibility to promotion to the next grade of the department. When an employee has reached the top step of his advance in the department he is presented with a diploma, or larger certificate. Thus, the General Electric company chooses to recognize proficiency and merit above point of years in service of the company or of any one department, as a profit to the company and an encouragement to employees.

Likewise, every convenience is allowed employees, to make their work pleasant to them, thereby creating an interest in the business in which they are engaged. Each man is regarded as a part of the working force who has a particular niche in which he belongs. If he is tired and found wanting in some particular department, unless he is absolutely worthless, he is placed elsewhere from time to time until his niche is located and he is fitted in it to work in harmony with the balance of the industry.

It is to follow out these general lines that the re-organization, amalgamation and removal of the plants to Cleveland have been decided upon. Two years ago work was begun on the group plan at Nela park in the suburbs of Cleveland, and now that the construction is completed, it remains to get affairs settled down to a working basis, according to the explanation given Friday by the experts engaged in their work here.

65 CANDIDATES TO BE INITIATED BY LOCAL ORDER

The Knights of Columbus will hold a large initiation on Sunday afternoon, June 22. There is a class of 65 candidates to be initiated into the order and the work will be put on by P. J. McCarthy, master of the third degree from Cleveland. A banquet will be served to the members of the local lodge and large delegations from the surrounding cities in the evening.

IMMIGRATION BILL IS INTRODUCED BY SEN. GALLINGER

Washington.—Senator Dillingham of Vermont has introduced a bill by which he hopes to reduce immigration from southern and eastern Europe and Asia in a more effective way than was provided in the Dillingham-Burnett bill, which President Taft vetoed in the closing days of the last session. Mr. Dillingham, who was chairman of the committee on immigration last session and is now its ranking Republican member, has abandoned the literacy test to which Mr. Taft objected and substituted a provision that immigration from a country in one year should be limited to 10 per cent of the number of natives of that country already domiciled in the United States.

This provision would apply to all the world except the western hemisphere. The census returns show that countries of northern Europe, whose citizens are considered particularly desirable as immigrants, have already such heavy representation in the United States that the 10 per cent limit would largely increase the yearly inflow from most of those countries. On the other hand, Mr. Dillingham quotes figures to show that the bill would reduce the immigration of Austro-Hungarians by almost one-third, Greeks one-half, Italians one-third, Portuguese one-seventh, European Turks one-half and Asiatic Turks three-eighths.

While Mr. Dillingham admits that his bill is drafted for the express purpose of reducing undesirable immigration, he has sought to provide for the liberal operation of its provisions. Transient visitors are not counted in fixing the limit, nor are those aliens who return to this country after visiting their homes, nor aliens coming even for the first time if their near relatives are already in America. The professional and business classes are altogether exempt from the provisions of the bill, and the secretary of labor is authorized to admit aliens in excess of the 10 per cent limit for humanitarian reasons.

pose of reducing undesirable immigration.

"The average annual immigration from Austria-Hungary during the last ten years," said Mr. Dillingham, "has been approximately 220,000, but under the bill immigration from that country would be limited to 167,000 annually, at least until the census of 1920 afforded a new basis for computation. Immigration from Italy has averaged 207,000 annually, but future immigration from that country would be limited to about 134,500, while Greece would be limited to 10,000 as compared with an average of about 20,000 in recent years. Apparently immigration from Turkey would be cut down about one-half. Of all the principal sources of southern and eastern European immigration Russia alone would seem to be little affected, as under the proposed law 173,500 immigrants could be admitted from that country annually as compared with an average annual immigration of 172,500 during the past ten years.

"On the other hand, Germany has furnished an average of 35,000 immigrants in recent years and under the proposed law could send 250,000. The United Kingdom could send about 250,000, but has sent an average of 60,000 in the last ten years. In the case of France, Belgium, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries the margin is not so large, but it is not believed that the law would in any way affect immigration from such countries.

It is not expected that Mr. Dillingham's bill will receive consideration at the present session but he hopes for bipartisan support for it next winter. In the meantime he, with other senators who favor it, will work quietly in the interests of the measure.

SICKENING SENSATION OF FALLING THROUGH SPACE

TERRIFYING SENSATIONS OF AN OHIO LADY WHO SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH HEART TROUBLE.

FEELING ALMOST INDESCRIBABLE.

Days and Nights of Pain and Agony Before Going to the United Doctors.

How often people live lives of misery through the mental reaction of some physical disorder. Sometimes one hears of a person saying that they have a feeling that something is going to happen to them or those near them. They have premonitions that cause them continual anxiety and misery. Friends laugh at them without being able to dispel their fears seldom realizing that it is only too often the symptom of a physical disorder that requires attention rather than ridicule or argument to convince the sufferer that his or her fears are unfounded.

Sometimes it is deranged liver or stomach—sometimes heart trouble—in fact it may arise from a variety of ills.

Mrs. Ella Varney of 271 North Fourth street, Newark, Ohio, in making a statement to the public telling how she was cured by the United Doctors who have their famous institute on the second floor of the Arcade building says:

"For several years I have been troubled with palpitation of the heart that has caused me untold misery and many sleepless nights. At times I would have the terrifying sensation of falling through space and would awake with a start, sickened at the feeling."

"My condition was such that I could hear my heart beating and at times when it seemed to stop for an instant thoughts would flash through my mind that would make the prepiration actually pour off me and my head would feel on the point of bursting."

"The worry and constant agony is indescribable—and during this time no doctors or patent medicines had helped me."

"A friend advised me that I had better consult the United Doctors and I caught at this hope like a drowning person grasping a straw, for it was a last chance."

"I now wish to say that I have treated with the United Doctors but one month to date (June 10) and yet can now sleep like a child and my illness is now of the past. It seems as if my suffering was as but a weird dream. It seems as if the United Doctors had performed a miracle in my case."

The above statement of Mrs. Varney should bring great encouragement to other sick people who have formerly treated in vain in their search and longing for health. One of many testimonials given constantly to the United Doctors praising their new system of medicine—it strikes a note of sincerity that leaves no room for doubt as to Mrs. Varney's wish that her experience will guide others to health.

WILL CLEAN UP THE RESORTS AT BUCKEYE LAKE

Prosecutor J. Howard Jones has determined there shall be a clean up of the resorts at Buckeye Lake. Since the opening of the Buckeye Lake Park on May 18, eight places have taken out licenses where intoxicating liquors can be sold. The proprietors of several of these places insist on order and endeavor to conduct the business in as decent a manner as is possible under the circumstances. At others all sense of decency and propriety is lost sight of and revels of immorality occur which would bring the blush of shame to the cheek of the boldest habitue of the tenderloin district.

A recital of the different orgies which have been committed at several of the lake resorts would be conclusive evidence that it is time to call a halt and Prosecutor Jones Friday informed the Advocate that he would take immediate action to bring about some sense of decency on the part of those who frequent the places.

Tuesday he notified the keepers of all lake saloons and restaurants to appear before him and laid down the law as to how their business must be conducted in the future. Several of the proprietors who desire to maintain orderly places have been complying with that request. It is now up to the others to do likewise or Prosecutor Jones will bring them before a special grand jury which he will call for the purpose.

Suit for Money.

Edward A. Neff filed suit in common pleas court Friday to collect $1,400.91 from the Ball-Fintze company, which the plaintiff alleges is due him on commissions.

In Neff's petition, filed by Attorneys Smythe & Smythe, he avers that in 1901 the company engaged him and that January 1, 1906, his duties began under a contract which allowed him $70 per month and his expenses, and six per cent. commission on all sales. He says the company failed to pay the commission.

PENSION LIST GROWING SMALL

Less than 25 per cent of the Union soldiers of the civil war are alive. On Memorial day there were 167,000 survivors of the civil war, less than 1,000 Mexican war survivors and none of the war of 1812. On the pension records are 200 widows of veterans of the second war with Great Britain. The average age of civil war veterans is 70.

In 19 years the United States will have ceased to pay pension to civil war veterans according to bureau officials. About 200 million dollars has been paid annually in pensions in the past two years. The amount is higher now because of the dollar a day law.

Only 25 per cent of the land area of the United States is improved farm land.
